BAD ECZEMA ON BABY

Head one Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad form of eczema, when he was four months old. We tried three doctors, but they did not help him. We then used your three CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months his head was entirely well. When we began using it his head was a solid sore from the crown to his eyebrows. It was also all over his ears, most of his face, and small places on different parts of his body. There were sixteen weeks that we had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up; and had to keep mittens tied on his hands to keep his finger-nails out of the sores, as he would scratch if he could in any way get his hands loose. We know your CUTICURA REMEDIES cured him. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

CHEATING IN HORSE BLANKETS

Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that 5/A Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the 5/A trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.

The Speaker and the House.

The assumption that Speaker Crisp is bound, either by precedent or by existing political necessity, to appoint Mr. Mills Chairman of Ways and Means is an utter absurdity. No man in the House has the right to a particular position on any committee, beyond his special ability to fill it with credit to the country and with safety to the majority that controls the body. This rule has been recognized by all Speakers for many years past almost without a single exception, and the claim that Mr. Mills is entitled to the Chairmanship of Ways and Means because he has been defeated for Speaker, or because he once filled that position, is illogical and should be dismissed as unworthy of consideration.

When Mr. Kerr, of Indiana, was elected to the Speakership over Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, after a contest nearly as close and desperate as the contest between Crisp and Mills, neither Mr. Randall nor his friends made any claim to the Chairmanship of Ways and Means, and Speaker Kerr appointed Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, who had not been a candidate for Speaker at all. At the opening of the next Congress, Mr. Randall was chosen Speaker after an earnest and close contest with Blackburn, of Kentucky. Blackburn gracefully bowed to his defeat, as did Randall when Kerr defeated him two years before, but he made no claim to the Chairmanship of Ways and Means, and Mr. Randall gave that position to Fernando Wood, of New York, who had not been a candidate for the chair. Again, when Mr. Carlisle was chosen Speaker over Randall, after a contest of unusual intensity, neither Randall nor his friends claimed the Chairmanship of Ways and Means. Although he had been three times elected Speaker and was the confessed leader of the party on the floor, Carlisle reappointed Morrison to the head of Ways and Means.

It will be seen that there is no precedent for the claim that because a man has been the most prominent of the defeated candidates for Speaker, he must be awarded the Chairmanship of Ways and Means. The Chairman of that Committee will be most potential in shaping the party policy of the majority on the most vital issues to be met in the next Presidential campaign. If Mr. Mills is best fitted for that duty, he should be appointed without regard to his candidacy for Speaker. If he is not the best fitted man for the place, he should not be appointed, regardless of the fact that he has been at the head of that Committee in a former Congress. The majority of the present House is confronted by new occasions and new duties, and it must meet them manfully and skillfully or it must defeat itself in the great battle of 1892. Let Speaker Crisp dismiss all the absurd claims of individual rights to particular positions on his committees, and let him organize the House with the best equipped men assigned to every important duty.—Phila. Times.

High Tariff and Wages

The Philadelphia Ledger takes high ground in favor of making the tariff the leading issue in the next Presidential election. The Ledger will likely be gratified. Tariff reform and an honest dollar will doubtless be the rallying cry of the Democratic party, and it will enter the contest in 1892 with these great leading issues inscribed on its banners. The Ledger says:

"The sustainers of protection should be more than willing to invite discussion of the Tariff. They believe that Protection stands the assured foundation of national prosperity, the prop and stay of our manufactures, and its own best excuse and defense; but there are a great many Protectionists who favor free raw materials, and who do not regard the McKinley Tariff as a fair exposition of genuine protection. There is, indeed, a very common demand that that crude measure shall be revised in accordance with the doctrine of protection which coddles none and protects all."

The Westminster Advocate comments: The pretence of protection to American labor through the medium of the tariff is one of the greatest impositions ever practiced upon the public mind. The only protection it affords is to the wealthy manufacturer. All the rest of mankind is plucked by it for his benefit. This fact is becoming well understood by the most obtuse. The operative sees that he is brought into competition with foreign labor, which is placed side by side with him in the factory, at low wages, thus reducing wages to a very low scale. The operative gets no benefit of the protection, the profits of the employer alone being enhanced by it. This fact is now becoming well understood by every laboring man. The benefit of free raw material is now very generally admitted, even by tariff men, and the fallacy of a high tariff for "protection" is gradually yielding to common sense and sober reason.

NO USE FOR THEM.—At the last November election the colored Republican candidate for Coroner in Dauphin county was defeated by several hundred, whilst the balance of the Republican ticket was elected by over 2 000 majority.

In Columbia, last February, a colored Republican candidate for School Director, was defeated, not having polled half the Republican vote, although a reputable man and fairly nominated.

And now city solicitor Warwick, of Philadelphia, decides that colored boys shall not be admitted to Girard College. Evidently the colored voter does not want to see—does not want light.

DON M. DICKINSON, ex-Postmaster General, says that the Democrats in Michigan do not mind President Harrison's reference in his message to the gerrymandering of the state and the enactment of legislation to choose presidential electors by districts. He says that the Michigan plan insures the Democrats at least eight electoral votes.

THE Pennsylvania Railroad Company has purchased the Allegheny Valley Railroad, paying for it $3 000,000 and assuming a debt of $26,000 000. It will probably be used in a short freight route between New York and Chicago.

THE Democratic State Committee will meet in Harrisburg January 20th, to elect a chairman, secretary, etc.

THEODORE TILTON, who was very prominent in New York a few years ago as a journalist, lecturer, literary man and political speaker, is still living in Paris, and intends to make that his permanent home.

E. M. FIELD is also charged with forgery. District Attorney Nicoll says that nothing can save him from Sing Sing except proof of his insanity. His forgeries are said to aggregate $250,000.

The Old Year's End.

I hear a sound, the tolling bell
From yon church tower,
It is the solemn funeral knell
Which strikes upon the ear, to tell
The year's last hour.

'Tis gone—forever with the Past
Numbered 'twill be,
Its joyous days fled but too fast,
It brought no pleasures that could last—
Naught from change free.

Let Winter weave a shroud of snow,
To hide his head;
In the vast Silence lay him low,
Where buds and flowers shall no more blow,
For the year, dead.

And now we turn with eager face
Toward the New,
What joys 'twill bring its steps to grace,
What good in which we'll seek a place,
The whole year through.

AGAPA.

KITTY'S NEW YEAR.

"It's rather hard," said Kitty Penflax, as she scalded the milk-pail with boiling water, and carefully wiped out the seams and depressions of the shining tin pans until not a drop of moisture could by any possibility linger there—"especially during holiday week, when there are so many little gayeties going on at home, and cousin Paul Penflax has already telegraghed three times for one of us to smooth his dying pillow. But of course mother couldn't come, and Selina's sprained ankle puts it out of the question for her—and Lizzie has her drawing and penmanship pupils, and it's very mean and selfish of me to grumble and repine like this! Yes, Cousin Penflax, yes I'm coming!" as a vigorous thumping of a cane or umbrella, or some other blunt-ended instrument signified the presence of a dominant will in the room upstairs. And she hastened to attend the summons, pulling down her dress sleeves and flinging off her green checked work-apron as she ran.

Paul Penflax lay among his pillows, a little yellow, dried up effigy of a man, with fretful curves to the corner of his mouth, sharp, bead-black eyes, and hair of that peculiar sandy tint that fades but never turns gray.

"Kitty," said he, "what time is it? Who has taken away my clock?"

"It's five o'clock, Cousin Paul."

"You're deceiving me, Kitty! It's dark, ain't it—pitch dark?"

"But it's a snowy evening, Cousin Paul, and the days are short. And you know you gave the clock to Zenas Throgg to repair."

"But I didn't expect he was going to keep it always."

"Shall I send for it?"

"No-o-o!" snarled the yellow-faced invalid. "I don't suppose he's touched it yet. He's the slowest snail going. Get some one to move the hall clock in here. I'm lost without the time of day."

"Yes, Cousin Paul," meekly answered Kitty.

"Because you know," said old Mr. Penflax, lugubriously, "every minute is of value to me now. My days are numbered."

"The doctor says—"

"I don't care what the doctor says," interrupted Paul Penflax. "He can't see an inch further than his own drugs. All the Penflaxes die on New Year's eve! It's the family fate."

"Oh, no, Cousin Paul, because—"

"Your father died on New Year's eve, didn't he?"

"Yes, but—"

"And Zachariah Penflax, down in Massachusetts Bay, was blown off the deck of the 'Lively Sally,' in a squall, ten years ago on New Year's eve?"

"They didn't know whether it was the thirty-first of December or the first of January, because—"

"But I know," solemnly interrupted Mr. Paul Penflax. "And there was your cousin Maria."

"But she wasn't a Penflax!"

"But she married one. It's all the same. The Penflaxes all go on New Year's eve."

"All these are only coincidences, Cousin Paul," pleaded Kitty, as she tenderly straightened the sheets and smoothed the pillow-cases.

"Humph!" grunted the sick man. "When you see me in my coffin you'll say it's 'only a coincidence,' I suppose?"

"Please don't talk so," soothed Kitty. "Here is your gruel, nice and hot."

"You see!" said Paul Penflax—

"Shall I make you a cup of tea?"

"You see!" he mournfully reiterated.

"Or would you prefer coffee?"

"You'll see!"

"I'm going to stew down a chicken for you to-night," cheerfully went on Kitty. "And Owen French says there's such a nice little red calf out in the barn. A New Year's present."

"Calves and chickens don't signify to me now," groaned Mr. Penflax. "But I want the clock brought in where I can see it and hear it tick. Every second is of importance to me now. It's five o'clock, is it? Very well. Before midnight the Penflax doom will have descended on me. You've been very good to me, Kitty, I wish I had a fortune to leave you, but I've only the farm and—and the big diamond stud that old Captain Blossom gave me before he committed suicide in the garret ten years ago. I'm calculating to give that to Mary, my niece, who is so poor, down on Beverick Beach. Mary's father helped me years ago, when I needed help badly. It's all writen in a paper somewhere. And the stud is sewed up in a bag of chamois leather, in the lining of my pillow-tick. Don't let any one get at the diamond stud, Kitty, until the lawyer comes."

"No, cousin Penflax, I won't," protested Kitty.

"And now bring me the big Bible and my spectacles," said Paul. "And call Owen French to move the clock at once!"

"Won't you eat your gruel, Cousin Paul?"

"No," said Penflax. "What has a dying man to do with gruel? Isn't it New Year's eve? Isn't the Penflax doom approaching?"

Kitty crept down stairs with an odd prickly sensation in every nerve. She knew that an old sea-captain had boarded with Paul Penflax years ago, but she never had heard of the suicide in the garret—the great, dark, echoing garret, with its angles full of shadow and the mysterious creaking, scuffling sounds, which might be rats, or might be the wind under the loose shingles, or rustling the bunches of dried herbs that hung from the beams, or might be—

She was glad when she saw Owen French's stalwart form by the cooking stove.

"I've brought you in a fresh supply of wood and water, Kitty," said he. "It's snowing so that we shan't know where the well is to-morrow morning! Now, Kitty, haven't I earned a kiss?"

"Don't, Owen!" said the girl—and yet she smiled a little as she added: "Please go up and move the big hall clock into Cousin Paul's room. He wants it there."

"Bound to die, is he?" said Owen, shrugging his shoulders. "Well, I suppose we'll have to humor him!"

He went cheerily upstairs, moved in the big cherry-wood clock, where the gilt sun never left off rising behind a grove of painted poplars above the face and the huge brass pendulum swung drowsily to and fro.

"Now what else can I do for you, squire," said he with alacrity.

"Nothing," said Paul, "or stay. My tonic, please. I need all the strength I can gain."

"Is it this bottle?" said Owen.

Mr. Penflax nodded without turning his head—swallowed his medicine, and folded up his glasses.

"I'll rest a little now," said he, and honest Owen tiptoed out of the room, painfully conscious of his squeaking boots.

Paul Penflax shut his eyes and meditated gloomily over past, present and future.

"I've been a miserable sinner," said he; "but I don't know, if I was to live my life over again, that—I wonder now, if this is imagination—this strange, drowsy feeling? I've heard doctors tell that death was only a sort of falling asleep, used-up sensation. Yes, it's the Penflax fate. It's New Year's eve, and I'm dying! I wonder—what—Kitty—"

Only a minute, as it seemed, and there were footsteps and voices in the room. But he lay there, unable to stir hand or foot—even to lift an eyelid.

"I suppose they'll lay me out now," said he to himself. "I'm dead. And it wasn't so painful, after all? I can't see 'em, but I can hear 'em talk."

"I found him lying just so," said Kitty's soft voice, "when I came upstairs. "Oh, dear! Oh, dear, do you suppose he's dead?"

"As a door nail," said Peter Penflax, a distant cousin, who lived next door.

"Must a' died just on the stroke of eleven."

"I told them so. The Penflax fate!" was the reflection in Cousin Paul's mind.

"Dreadful cold weather for a funeral," said Peter.

"Where is Owen?"

"Gone for the doctor," sobbed Kitty.

"For the doctor! That's only money thrown away. He charges a dollar a visit," growled Peter. "You'd a deal better fetch the undertaker! By the way, Kitty, where's that diamond stud of his! And all his papers? I'd better take charge of them at once."

"I don't know," said Kitty, thankful that the mention of papers enabled her to speak truly. "The lawyer—"

"Lawyers cost money," said Peter. "I'm lawyer enough, and I'm the natural heir. Paul was a regular old miser—never helped nobody but himself. If he could, he'd took his money with him, he would. And I mean to find that diamond if—"

"You shall not touch a thing!" cried Kitty, as Peter began to open the drawers of the ancient mahogany desk in the corner and pry around in various directions. "He was good to me, and I won't have his wishes disregarded!"

"I'm bound to have the stud," said Peter, "or I'll know the reason why!"

"And I'm dead and can't interfere!" thought poor Paul.

"Sit down!" said Peter Penflax. "I ain't goin' to be domineered over by no woman! That diamond is here, and I'm the next o' kin—sit down, I say, or I'll choke you like you was a chicken!"

"Oh, if Owen French were here!" gasped Kitty, wringing her hands. "Let go my throat! You hurt me! You—"

"Let go her throat or I'll be the death of you!" bawled a voice behind Peter Penflax, and the interloper jumped back to behold a yellow visage and flannel bed-gown to match of the supposed dead man close to him.

"What's them bells?" cried Paul. "The old South Church ringing in the New Year! And I am not dead! Then I shan't die this year, the Lord be praised! Get out of this, Peter Penflax! You ain't heir to my diamond stud yet, and I don't mean you shall be! I'm powerful drowsy, and my legs feel like cracked pipe-stems; but I'm as live as ever I was! Get out, I say!"

"You're a ghost!" said Peter Penflax. "And ghosts have no legal rights."

"I'm alive!" retorted Paul. "Kitty, hand me the tongs! Yes, I thought that would scatter him! And the old clock stopped at eleven, did it? Everything's combined agin the Penflax fate, I do believe. And now, Kitty, help me back to bed, and give me a swallow of my tonic. It's there on the table."

"No, Cousin Penflax, it isn't," said Kitty. "This is the laudanum liniment for your back!"

Paul Penflax opened and shut his mouth like a piece of newly invented machinery.

"The laudanum liniment!" said he. "That accounts for it! Owen French gave me a big dose of it last night—reckoned it was the tonic! It must have put me dead asleep, and I s'posed of course I was dead! But I wasn't. I was alive enough to come to your rescue! And you shall have the diamond, after all! You've earned it, my girl! Put wood on the fire. Set the clock going. Fetch on that chicken stew you told me about. If I'm to live another year I may as well be comfortable about it!"

But after that night Paul left off talking about the Penflax doom. He died comfortably in his bed, somewhere in the heat of August, that year; but previous to this he sold the big diamond stud and divided its proceeds equally between his cousin Kitty and the widow down on Beverick Beach. His room is empty now, and the old clock in the corner has never ticked a tick since that New Year's eve when it stopped at eleven.

"I declare," said Kitty French—for she had married Owen and settled down in her inherited home by that time—"I don't know which I miss most, the old clock or Cousin Paul!"

And Peter, the miser, has never once left off railing at destiny.

THE recent purchase by Baron Hirsch of three thousand and one square leagues of land in the Argentine Republic for 360,000 sovereigns, makes him the possessor of a territory larger than is owned by any other man, and it exceeds in area the kingdom of Montenegro. It will be used as a place to colonize the Russian Hebrews.

"WHAT? Is the Widow Brown going to be led to the altar for the third time?"

"No; I think not. She ought to be able to find her way there herself by this time."

Wishes Without Heart.

"I wish you a Happy New Year, mamma," cried Belle, as she bounded down stairs on New Year's morning. "A Happy New Year to you, grandma! Lots of Happy New Years to you, baby!" she added, kissing the baby's soft cheek.

"Does my little girl know how to help make the New Year a happy one to us all?" asked her mother.

"Oh, yes!" snapped Belle, pettishly, "by being a good girl, of course. That's what you always say." And I don't know what more she might have said, but just then she heard her father and brother coming in, and ran to meet them and be the first to give them the greetings of the season. "A Happy New Year to you, papa! A Happy New Year to you, brother Will!"

"I'm going out to slide till school-time," she said, after breakfast.

"I wish you'd sew these buttons on to my gloves," said her father. "I want them to wear this morning, and your mother is dressing the baby."

"Oh, dear!" pouted Belle, throwing down her hood, and going in search of needle and thread, "that's always the way. I never can have any fun as other girls do."

"Won't you wear your cloak to school instead of your shawl?" grandma asked Belle, not long after. "I like the shawl so much to put over my shoulders these cold days."

"Well, yes, I suppose I can," was the ungracious reply. "The cloak is so old and faded that it looks like a fright, and the shawl is new and pretty."

And Belle put on her cloak with so much vim that she tore off two buttons and burst out a buttonhole.

Noon time came. "I'm as hungry as a bear!" said Belle, coming in from school.

"Please hurry off your things, and set the table," said her mother. "Dinner is a little behindhand. I've had so much to do, and baby has fretted a good deal."

"I think it's too hard to have to study all school-time," said Belle. "I wish you'd keep a servant to do the housework; I don't like it."

Baby was fretful after school that night. "She is cutting a tooth," said mamma, "and feels badly. Can't you play with her a little while, Belle, to amuse her, and help her forget her little aches and pains?"

"I don't think there's any fun playing with babies," Belle said, crossly. "They don't know anything. Come along, then, if you must, you little bother," and Belle took her so roughly, and spoke so crossly, that baby just made up a lip and cried aloud.

"Come and have a game of checkers with me, Belle," said Will, after tea.

"Oh, checkers! You always want to play checkers, and you know I hate 'em. I'll play Mother Goose with you."

"That's too simple a game, said Will. "Come, be a good girl, now."

"I'd rather read," was the selfish reply.

And so, before twelve hours from the time Belle wished each of the rest a Happy New Year, she had grieved every one of them by her selfishness. How much heart was there in her good wishes, do you think?

What is a Kiss.

Some time ago the London Tid Bits offered a two guinea prize for the best definition of a kiss. Seven thousand answers were received. The prize was awarded to Benjamin J. Greenwood, of Tulse Hill, London, whose definition is here given:

"An insipid and tasteless morsel, which becomes delicious and delectable in proportion as it is flavored with love."

The following are some of the best of the other definitions submitted.

"That which you cannot give without taking, and cannot take without giving."

"Something rather dangerous,
Something rather nice,
Something rather wicked,
Though it can't be called a vice,
Some think it naughty,
Others think it wrong,
All agree it's jolly
Though it don't last long."

"An article that is always accepted, and (im) printed, but not always published."

"A demonstration of love which will dry the baby's tears, thrill the maiden's heart, and soothe the ruffled feelings of a tired wife."

The Pretty Woman.

Boston Gazette.

A pretty woman must first of all have clearly cut, regular features.

She must have full, clear eyes.

She must have a skin that is above reproach, untouched by rouge or powder.

She must have glossy hair that has never known the touch of bleach or dye.

She must have a white, expressive hand, preferably a small one but not of a necessity if it is well kept and white.

She must know how to put on her clothes, or she loses half her beauty.

She must fully understand what best suits her in the way of hair dressing and cling closely to that.

A woman may have all these attractions, and unless her own personality is charming, unless she has tact, it dawns on you, after you have seen her once or twice, that she is not a pretty woman.

The most fascinating women to men usually have less than half these regulation charms.

BEQUESTS AT CARLISLE.—The will of Susan P. Hoffman, probated at Carlisle, gives $2 000 to the Methodist Episcopal Church at Carlisle, $1,000 to the Preachers' Aid Society of the M. E. Church, $40,000 in trust to the Fidelity Trust and Safe Deposit Company of Philadelphia, interest on said sum to go to John J. Hoffman, a son, during his life, and at his death to go to Dickinson College to establish a "Susan P. Hoffman" professorship; $5,000 are placed in trust with the same company, the interest to be paid to John J. Hoffman during his life and at his death to go to endow a bed in the Methodist Episcopal Hospital at Brooklyn; $500 are bequeathed to Rev. Dr. Evans, of the M. E. Church at Carlisle, a similar sum to John W. Wetsel, and the residue of the estate goes to the son, John J. Hoffman.

WILLING TO TRY.

"Will you love, honor and obey
This man?" the preacher said
Unto a sweetly gushing bride
Before the altar led.
She smiled and raised her drooping eyes,
The bridegroom's face to scan,
Then lowered them again and said:
"I'll do the best I can."

THE wheat crop of Kansas would supply a population of 13 000,000, or one-fifth of the population of the country. It would take 145,000 cars of 400 bushels each to haul the wheat grown in Kansas this year. No other State in the Union has ever produced so much surplus wheat.—Kansas City Star.

HARMON SHEIVER, the wealthiest retired German citizen of Massillon, Ohio, lost $5,500 at a three-card-monte game worked on him by two strangers. This is mighty dear learning of a trick, but many self-sufficient people will learn no other way.

Steady Nerves.

An incident which recently took place at Plymouth, Massachusetts, called for the possession of a good deal of pluck on the part of the two actors. A young man of about twenty was leading a bull that had always been peaceably inclined, when the animal seemed to be seized by a sudden fury, and made a lunge at him.

The stick which was fastened to a ring in the animal's nose snapped short in the young man's grasp, and almost before he knew what had happened, he was thrown into the air from the bull's horns.

His clothing was torn nearly from his body, his cheek was cut open, and he was much bruised, but when he fell, almost under the feet of the bull, he had presence of mind enough to realize that his only safety lay in keeping so close to the head of the animal that he could not be thrown up again. He managed to get three fingers of his left hand into the ring in the bull's nose, while with his right hand he grasped one of the horns.

Meanwhile the farmer who owned the animal, and who is an excellent shot, had got a rifle from the house, and hastily put into it two cartridges. The young man, finding his strength failing, called out to the other to shoot.

"Fire, for pity's sake," he said. "I can't hold on much longer."

The bull, astonished by the clutch of his victim, had for a moment stopped, but when he should again start there would be small chance of the life of the young man. The animal stood so that his forehead was presented to the farmer, but the young man's head was within a few inches of the spot which the bullet must strike.

"If I fire," the farmer called, "the ball may flatten on the bone, and kill you on the rebound."

"Fire any way, and quick," the other cried out, as the bull showed signs of moving.

The farmer put his rifle to his shoulder, and fired. The shot was so true, that the bull dropped in his tracks without a struggle.

AN ABLE FINANCIER.—As a young man passed along the street a resident remarked to a visitor:

"That is one of our ablest financiers."

"Why, I am astonished," was the reply. "He doesn't look to be over twenty-five."

"He isn't so old as that even."

"How does he happen to be so successful?"

"Blamed if I know. He came here a stranger three years ago, with nothing except his good looks, and to-day he is the husband of the richest woman in the town." —Detroit Free Press

GOV. WILLIAM E. RUSSELL.

THE FORUM is the most instructive, the most timely, the largest and the handsomest of the reviews.

The three great groups of subjects of the coming year will be impartially and instructively discussed by the ablest writers:

I. POLITICAL SUBJECTS growing out of the Presidential Campaign.

II. FINANCIAL DISTURBANCES here and abroad.

III. THEOLOGICAL UNREST—with all the social questions suggested by these groups of great topics.

There is no other way whereby one may get the ripest information about the great problems of the time within so narrow a compass or for so small a sum—short studies of great subjects by more than a hundred of the foremost men and women of the world; because there is only one American periodical for which all the great leaders of opinion and of thought write; and that is The Forum.

The December number, for example, contains: Degradation by Pensions—The Protest of Loyal Volunteers, by Lieutenant Allen R. Foote, Founder of the Society of Loyal Volunteers; The Meaning of the Democratic Victory in Massachusetts, by Gov. Wm. E. Russell; French Feeling towards Germany—Another Conflict about Alsace-Lorraine Inevitable, by Camille Pelletan, Member of the French Chamber of Deputies; Should the Silver Law of 1890 be Repealed? by Jacob H. THREE CHEERS FOR THE MILLERS.—The movement originated by the Northwestern Millers of Minneapolis, to send a ship load of flour from the millers of the United States to the starving Russian peasants, is being heartily endorsed by flour makers in all sections of the country. The flour mills of Akron, Ohio, have contributed 24 000 pounds to the cargo; the Southern Indiana Millers' Association, 23,000 pounds; the mills of Topeka, Kas., 50,000 pounds; the mills of Duluth, 32,000 pounds; the mills of New Ulm, Minn., 16,000 pounds; the North Dakota Millers' Association, 50,000 pounds. Individual millers from every part of the country are responding generously, and the total amount so far as promised exceeds 700,-000 pounds of flour.

SENATOR VOORHEES is quoted as saying that all the Democratic Senators have agreed to assist him in preventing the confirmation of Judge Woods, of Indiana, as a Circuit Judge, on the ground that his action in the Dudley "blocks of five" case proved him unfit for a judicial position.

THE Iowa State board of agriculture reports the total value of the products of Iowa soil for 1891 to be $449,897,605. Of this amount over $100,000,000 is for corn. Horses come next, with $76,000,000. Milch cows and other cattle $70,000,000; hay and butter products each are over $33,000,000; oats over $26,000,000; wheat, $25,000,000; hogs, 29,000,000.

FIVE banks controlled by Rosenberger, Shirley & Co. were closed Monday in the Shenandoah Valley, Va. The banks are in Warrenton, Gordonsville, Basic City, Waynesboro, and Newmarket. The liabilities of Rosenberger, Shirley & Co. are about $150,000. The small shopkeepers suffer most. Tightness in the money market and the tumble in real estate are assigned as the cause of the failure.

LIKE George Washington, Daniel Webster found the greatest comfort of his later years in the delightful seclusion of his farm. One of the most familiar pictures of Webster shows him sitting in the shadow of the elm tree, under which he had the talk with his father on the hot, July day, when his future was settled, as far as his father had the power to settle it.

THE COMMITTEES ANNOUNCED.—TARIFF REFORM.—PARTY POLICY.—IMPORTANT MATTERS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25, 1891.

Editor of Compiler: Speaker Crisp played Santa Claus for his colleagues by announcing the Committee assignments. To say that everybody is satisfied would be as great a mistatement as that made by the Republicans in saying that the dissatisfaction is great enough to cause serious dissention in the party. That there is some dissatisfaction is true, but it is little, if any, greater than that which always follows the action of a new Speaker, and unprejudiced men agree that Mr. Crisp has not shown a disposition to punish those who voted against him, to any marked extent, by putting them on obscure committees. Of course some of the gentlemen who did not get just the places they wanted, will charge that the reason of it was their opposition to Mr. Crisp's nomination in the caucus. By the time Congress reassembles on the 5th of January, it is not probable that any traces of disappointment will be visible, and it was the expectation that such would be the case which caused Mr. Crisp to work night and day, although ill enough to be in bed, in order to announce the committees before the Christmas adjournment.

A glance at the list of Committee chairmen below will show that all sections are well represented: Elections O'Ferral (Va.); Ways and Means, Springer (Ill); Appropriations, Holman (Ind); Judiciary, Culberson (Tex); Banking and Currency, Bacon (N. Y); Coinage, Weights and Measures, Bland (Mo.); Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Mills (Tex); Rivers and Harbors, Blanchard (La.); Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Fowler (N. J.); Agriculture, Hatch (Mo.); Foreign Affairs, Blount (Ga.); Military Affairs, Outhwaite (O.); Naval Affairs, Herbert (Ala); Post Offices, Henderson (N. C.); Public Lands, McRae (Ark.); Indian Affairs, Peel (Ark); Territories, Washington (Tenn); Railways and Canals, Catchings (Miss.), Manufactures, Page (R I.); Mines and Mining, Cowles (N. C.); Public Buildings and Grounds, Bankhead (Ala.); Pacific Railroads, Riley (Pa.); Levees and Improvements in Mississippi River, Robinson (La.); Education, Hayes (Ia.); Private Land Claims, Fitch (N. Y.); Labor, Tarsney (Mo.); Militia, Lane (Ill.); Patents, Tillman (S. C.); Invalid Pensions, Martin (Ind.); Pensions, Wilson (Mo); Claims, Bunn (N. C); War Claims, Beltzhoover (Pa.); District of Columbia, Hemphill (S. C.); Revision of Laws, Ellis (Ky.); Expenditures State Department, Lester (Ga.); Expenditures Treasury Department, Brickner (Wis.); Expenditures War Department, Montgomery (Ky.); Expenditures Navy Department, McClelland (Ind); Expenditures in Post Office Department, Oates (Ala.); Expenditures Interior Department, Owens (O); Expenditures Department of Justice, Allen (Miss.); Expenditures of Department of Agriculture, Edmunds (Va.); Expenditures for Public Buildings, Youmans (Mich); Library, Cummings (N. Y.); Printing, Richardson (Tenn.); Enrolled Bills, Warwick (O.); Reform in the Civil Service, Andrew (Mass); Election of President and Vice President, Chapman (Mich); Census, Wilcox (Conn.); Ventilation and Acoustics, Stahlnecker (N. Y); Alcoholic Liquor Traffic, Haynes (O.); Irrigation, Lanham (Tex); Immigration and Naturalization, Stump (Md); Columbian Exposition, Durborrow (Ill.); Accounts, Rusk (Md.); Mileage, Castle (Minn.)

Membership of the Ways and Means and Appropriation Committees is considered equal to a minor chairmanship. Following are the Democratic members exclusive of the chairmen, of those two committees, Ways and Means, McMillin (Tenn.) Turner (Ga.), Wilson (W. Va.), Montgomery (Ky) Whiting (Mich.) Shively (Ind.), Cockran (N. Y.), Stevens (Mass). Bryant (Nebr.): Appropriations, Forney (Ala) Sayers (Tex.). Breckenridge (Ky.) Compton (Md.) O Neill (Mass) Livingston (Ga.)

As far as the formation of the committees can indicate the policy of the Democratic party in the House of Representatives the outlook is most decidedly favorable to tariff reform and a marked retrenchment in public expenditures. The tariff policy is to attack the McKinley bill in detail by repealing the most obnoxious of its schedules. If the Republican Senate refuses to agree to this or the Republican President vetoes it, should it pass the Senate, the people will know where to place the blame.

Although the committee on Coinage contains nine members, including its chairman, who favor the free coinage of silver against four who are opposed to it, there is no certainty that a free coinage bill will be reported from the committee. One of the members said to your correspondent: "We favor the free coinage of silver, but we shall do nothing that a majority of the party in Congress does not fully endorse."

Senator Sherman has reintroduced the Nicaragua canal $100,000,000 scheme in the Senate.

It looks now very much as if the United States would have to give Chili a scare, if it does not actually go to war with her. It is either that or a square back down, unless there is a decided change very soon.

Speaker Crisp has gone to his home in Georgia to spend the holiday vacation.

DEM.

Dreary Outlook for New Parties.

Star-Independent.

Talk about new parties and efforts for their organization, while full of good intent and often enthusiastic at their out-set, lose interest as soon as the two old parties are arrayed against each other in any arena, whether it be in legislation or the field of politics. The adhesion given to a new party becomes weakened when the old parties stand in battle array, confronting each other in belligerent attitude ready for a struggle over their old issues and aroused to high pitches of endeavor for men and measures to which they have been attached for years of memorable contests in their behalf. In no situation is this more the case than when Congress meets, as it is then that the old parties show at their best in efforts that are calculated to recall to them their old adherents who have changed into a new party. Such men always feel awkward when observed by their old associates in their new relationship, and no matter whether a new party man is a Democrat or Republican he is never at ease as an observer of a struggle between these parties, and pitches in as soon as he can find an opportunity to do it in favor of his old fealty, and in antagonism of his old foes in politics. There is really nothing unnatural in this, nothing to find fault with, for the reason that they seldom, if ever, forget the party in which they learned their first lesson in politics, imbibed their first conviction in principle, and formed their first preferences for men. While the old parties change their policies in the administration of government and conform their principles to meet the emergencies of progress and the necessities of the times, they never abandon their traditions and never lose sight of a fact that is to them glorious in memories of victory at the ballot box and triumphs of principles in government. It is for these reasons that new parties do not last long, and now again, under these tests as they are being made already in Congress, the overshadowing prestige of the old parties tends to recall their old adherents from any new adhesions they may have formed, because the old is more attractive, more important and more calculated, under all circumstances, to administer a great government like ours and pass the laws necessary for its proper guidance.

Under these circumstances the outlook for new parties at present in the field of politics is very dreary, and will become more so when the bugle notes of the two old parties call them to the great conflict of 1892. Then will the new parties melt away as will the frosts of the winter just begun disappear under the heats of the spring.

SOMETHING FOR THE NEW YEAR.—The world-renowned success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and their continued popularity for over a third of a century as a stomachic, is scarcely more wonderful than the welcome that greets the annual appearance of Hostetter's Almanac. This valuable medical treatise is published by the Hostetter Company, Pittsburg, Pa., under their own immediate supervision, employing 60 hands in that department. They are running about 11 months in the year on this work, and the issue of same for 1892 will be more than ten millions, printed in the English, German, French, Welsh, Norwegian, Swedish, Holland, Bohemian and Spanish languages. Refer to a copy of it for valuable and interesting reading concerning health, and numerous testimonials as to the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters amusement, varied information, astronomical calculations and chronological items, &c., which can be depended on for correctness. The Almanac for 1892 can be obtained free of cost, from druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the country.

A MYSTERY EXPLAINED.—The papers contain frequent notices of rich, pretty and educated girls eloping with negroes, tramps and coachmen. The well-known specialist, Dr. Franklin Miles, says all such girls are more or less hysterical, nervous, very impulsive, unbalanced; usually subject to headache, neuralgia, sleeplessness, immoderate crying or laughing. These show a weak nervous system for which there is no remedy equal to Restorative Nervine. Trial bottles and a fine book, containing many marvelous cures, free at John M. Huber's, who also sells and guarantees Dr. Mile's celebrated New Heart Cure, the finest of heart tonics. Cures fluttering, short breath, etc. f

An Important Letter.
MIDDLEPOINT, MD, April 14, 1891.
S. E. DUBBEL, Waynesboro, Pa.:
I have been using your Fahrney's Blood Cleanser or Panacea and Carbolic Ointment for some months past with such gratifying results, that I feel it but due you and the high merits of your preparations that I should formally express my endorsement of them. Prior to last August I had been affected with terrible itching of the skin and symptoms of dropsy were developing. My feet and ankles were swollen and I was obliged to sit in a chair the greater part of the night. My general health was very bad and I was about as miserable a being as you could well imagine. All medical treatment, including that of the best physicians outside of Baltimore, had failed to give me any relief from nine months doctoring.
It was during this month (August, 1890) that your father-in-law, Elder J. F. Oller, happened at my house, who, seeing my situation, induced me to try your Fahrney's Blood Cleanser or Panacea. I accordingly ordered a few bottles with the following results: After taking it some ten days the itching that was over my whole body ceased; the sores began to dry up, and the swelling in my feet and ankles went down. But then came the great conquest. My appetite had become so keen that I could scarcely gratify it. Indeed I was afraid to eat all that my appetite craved. Nevertheless I found that everything I did eat agreed with me. My digestion increased in proportion to my appetite, and for the first time in two years I could say that I felt good. I have continued the medicine right along since, though in decreased quantities and am now using my eleventh bottle. I am feeling quite well now and can't express my thanks to your father-in-law for the visit he paid me and for calling my attention to your most valuable medicines. I think it must have been a Godsend to me in my affliction. As many people knew my situation I have constant visitors to know what the medicine is doing for me. I tell them the facts and they go to your agents for the medicine. I think I am safe in saying that I have been the means of selling two thirds of your medicine sold by your agents in this county.
Now as regards your Carbolic Ointment, I used four boxes and am safe in saying that it cured me of the worst case of piles of which I have any knowledge. I had been a sufferer from this loathsome disease for thirty-five years. Your Ointment has entirely cured me, and thus met the highest and most difficult test of merit. Yours very truly,
ELIAS GROSSNICKEL.
Elias Grossnickel is a Deacon in the Brethren's (Dunkard) church at Middlepoint, Frederick county, Md. My father-in-law, J. F. Oller, is the Elder of the church at this place, (Waynesboro, Pa.) In the face of these facts and indisputable facts from such a reliable source, can you go amiss by using the medicine.

Scribner's Magazine.
An Exceptional Year.
The year 1891 has been marked by a greater advance than any similar period since the Magazine was established. At the end of 1891 the circulation has risen to more than 140,000. It may justly be promised that the further improvements for the coming year will be proportionate to these largely increased opportunities.
For Next Year.
It is not possible to give, in a brief space an account of all the features in preparation, but the material is deficient in neither importance nor range of subject. Among the subjects treated:
The Poor in the World's Great Cities.
It is proposed to publish a series of articles, upon a scale not before attempted, giving the results of special study and work among the poor of the great cities.
Washington Allston.
UNPUBLISHED REMININCENCES AND LECTURES of this foremost among early American painters. A number of illustrations will lend additional interest to the articles.
Important Moments.
The aim of this series of very short articles is to describe the signal occasions when some decisive event took place, or when some great experiment was first shown to be successful—such moments as that of the first use of the Atlantic cable, the first use of the telegraph and telephone, the night of the Chicago fire, etc., etc.
Out of Door Papers.
In the early spring will be begun a number of seasonable articles, among them being: SMALL COUNTRY PLACES, how to lay out and beautify them, by Samuel Parsons, Jr. FISHING LORE FROM AN ANGLER'S NOTE BOOK, by Dr. Leroy M. Yale. MOUNTAIN STATION LIFE IN NEW ZEALAND, by Sidney Dickinson. RACING IN AUSTRALIA, by Sidney Dickinson, with illustrations by Birge Harrison. The illustrations are made from original material.
A full prospectus appears in the Holiday Number, now ready.
PRICE, 25 CENTS. $3.000 A YEAR.

Man Killed at Littlestown.

SHOT DEAD BY A POLICEMAN AND ANOTHER BADLY WOUNDED.

On Christmas eve, at 9 30, during a carousal at Littlestown, this county, Policeman Elmer Crouse, in attempting to arrest Joseph Shadle, who, it is said, raised a club to strike him, shot and almost instantly killed Shadle, a large ball passing through his heart. In the same struggle Frank, a twin brother of Joseph's, was also shot, the ball penetrating the stomach, but he got away, and was found the next morning. Dr. E. K. Foreman extracted the ball and feels confident of his recovery. The officer was acting under orders of the Burgess and the theory of self-defense is urged. The dead body was taken to the office of Justice Yount, who held an inquest with John M. Wolf, P. S. Blocher, E. H. Lippy, L. T. Mehring, Mr. Forney and another man whose name we have not learned, Drs. Foreman and Weaver examining the wound. The jury found that Policeman Crouse shot Shadle in self-defense. The officer surrendered himself and was sent here under commitment on Friday in charge of Constable John Crouse. Judge McClean directed that the bail be fixed at $5 000. Messrs. George Stonesifer, Ephraim Myers and Solomon D. Mehring went his security for appearance at the January sessions. At a meeting of the Town Council on Saturday morning a resolution endorsing the Policeman was unanimously adopted. We are informed that the bars all closed early on the evening of the tragedy, some as early as 8 30 o'clock.

DEATH OF MRS JUDGE WILLS.—Though ill for some days, the announcement on Sunday morning that Mrs. Catharine Jane Smyser Wills, wife of Hon. David Wills, of this place, had passed away, came with a sudden shock. Prominent in the social life of the town for many years, a kind neighbor, generous to the poor and ill clad, her death will be mourned by many outside of the bereaved family who are thus so sadly stricken. Her age is given at 57 years 4 months and 15 days. Funeral this afternoon at 2 o'clock, interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Wills was the only daughter of the late Hon. Daniel M. Smyser.

MASONIC.—Good Samaritan Lodge 336, F. and A. M., celebrated St. John's Night last evening in the usual pleasant way. A number of visiting brethren from other Lodges sat with the members around the table in the banquet hall, the company numbering over forty. Mr. Lewis J. Ramer, as caterer, surpassed his former efforts in the ample supply of all the good things peculiar to the season. Following the supper, the W. M., Geo. J. Benner, Esq., was named as toast-master and in his happy manner brought out a number of impromptu and enjoyable responses.

Mr. H. D. Scott has been again appointed D. D. G. M. for this district.

The following have been elected officers by Good Samaritan Chapter, Royal Arch Masons: M. E. H. P., H. P. Mark; K., Dr. A. P. Beaver; S., George J. Benner; Sec., D. A. Skelly; Treas., James M. Caldwell.

AMONG the pleasant surprises of Christmas eve was the presentation to the members of the firm of G. W. Weaver & Son of two elegantly framed artotypes on easels by their employes. The feeling that prompts such gifts is unhappily too rare.

The exercises will be held in Mayer's Hall, consisting of an address by Rev. Father Foin, music by the G. A. Band, singing and recitations by the school children. The public cordially invited. 1t

PREMIUM NOTES AGAIN.

The following extract from The United States Review, of Phila, Dec. 10, 1891, shows the working of the Premium Note again, and although this time in a Live Stock Ins. Co. yet the principle and result are the same as in fire insurance:

"Advices from Reading, Pa., state the Receiver of the defunct Standard Live Stock Ins. Co., having recovered judgment against forty-five assessed policy-holders there, will immediately proceed to sue 1 000 Philadelphia policy-holders on assessments ranging from $18 to $500 each."

HOMICIDE IN YORK COUNTY.—On Friday night, Dec. 18th, a spelling bee was held at Eyster's school-house, in West Manchester township. Several fights took place on the outside; and Frank Hershey has since died of a terrible gash wound in the head several inches deep alleged to have been inflicted by Charles Lau. Excitement prevails throughout the whole neighborhood.

GEN. ALEXANDER BRADY SHARPE was found dead in his bed at Carlisle on Friday morning. His wife went to his room to call him, only to find him lifeless. Supposed heart failure.

EXAMINE your fowls carefully for "scaly legs," and treat those showing the least signs of having it. This is a disease well known to all poultry raisers, caused by a gathering of infinitesimal parasites, which comes imperceptibly at first in the crevices between the edges of the leg scales, and which increase rapidly, piling up on themselves, forming apparently grayish-white warts or rough bunches. Anoint the legs with coal oil and lard and the trouble will disappear after a few applications.

Christmas.

This prominent church and social festival passed off quietly and pleasantly here, nothing disorderly occurring.

Early morning church services, as announced in our last, in the Episcopal, Catholic, Reformed and U. B., were all well attended.

St. Francis Xavier's church was more elaborately decorated than for many years. Very Rev. Father Boll was assisted in the four services by Rev. Father Richley, of Frederick, who preached twice on Friday and also on Sunday.

On Thursday evening the Sunday School of Christ Lutheran church had a very pleasant exercise, presided over by the Superintendent, Dr. E. S. Breidenbaugh. The programme consisted of Scripture readings and singing, including a solo by Miss Ruth Wills. Appropriate addresses were delivered by Prof. J. W. Richard, D. D., and the Pastor, Rev. Dr. C. A. Hay. The children each received a pretty basket of candy and an orange.

The same evening a similar service occurred at the Presbyterian church, the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Demarest, conducting the service and the children receiving candy and oranges.

At the Methodist, the same evening, the attendance was large and the programme interesting, a new feature being presents of clothing, food, &c., brought by the scholars for distribution among the poor.

Friday evening the lecture room of Trinity Reformed was well filled with the school and spectators. The service was one of singing and Scripture, conducted by the Pastor, Rev. T. J. Barkley, who made a short address. Miss Eva Danner presided at the organ and Misses May Myers and Nellie Troxel sang solos. The infant scholars received neat boxes of candy and oranges. Among the presents was a handsome call-bell to the school by the sexton, Mr. Jacob Remmel, who was reimbursed with a pair of new shoes.

At St. James Lutheran, which was crowded, an elaborate programme was finely rendered. Mr. Geo. W. Spangler, the Superintendent, conducted, and the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Swartz delivered an address. Two handsome trees and other decorations beautified the front of the church. Singing made up a large part of the evening, and a number of pleasing recitations were given, among them by Misses May Belle Diehl, Lottie Dougherty and Annie Wible. The infant department was remembered with customary gifts and a number of the teachers and scholars exchanged presents.

Home Wedding.

On Thursday evening a pretty wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bream, in Straban township, it being the 25th anniversary of their marriage, which was celebrated in the joining in wedlock, by Rev. Dr. Joel Swartz of their oldest daughter, Miss Ella M., and Mr. John W. Meals, of the same township. The spacious residence was filled with relatives and other invited guests, the company numbering about seventy. Miss Eva Boyer, escorted to the organ by Mr. Geo. Swartz, rendered the wedding march. Mr. Harry C. Bream, brother of the bride, and Miss Spangler, both of Carlisle, attended the bride and groom. Following the ceremony elegant refreshments were served, the evening being one of genuine pleasure to all. The presents were handsome and numerous, embracing useful and beautiful testimonials of the good wishes of the young couple's large circle of warm friends. Christmas morning Mr. and Mrs. Meals started on their wedding tour to Philadelphia and other points. May their joint path through life be strewn with flowers and be crowned with sunshine.

University Extension.

For the Gettysburg Compiler.

In this article we will endeavor to show, in the space given us, what University Extension is, its aim and end.

The day is fast approaching when what is now called a well cultured man will be merely the average. The day is coming and is now when everybody is striving for higher education. The demand, already great, is rapidly increasing. The advantages offered in the past by our seats of learning have been found inadequate and, to a great extent, impracticable to satisfy the demand. Men of means who are so situated as to be unable to leave their places of business for so great a length of time as it requires to take a course of instruction at one of our universities, are desirous for the opportunity of higher instruction. Men who must depend upon their occupation and daily toil—who cannot leave their shops and go to school—are craving for higher education. The desire is growing everywhere. The demand must be met. How shall it be done? The University Extension movement solves the problem. It proposes to offer and does offer on terms within the reach of everybody who chooses to accept them, higher education in such a manner that the courses can be taken at home without interference with one's occupation. How? Any district or town can get up a class, organize and elect the course they would like to pursue, and then put in their application to the National Society for an instructor, and the university is established at your door. The instructors are of the most eminent teachers in the country, generally experienced University Professors. A course consists of six lectures, double course twelve. Each lecturer has a circuit of about five points, and makes the round every week. The course would thus cover six weeks or three months as the Local Society should choose to elect either a single or double course. The movement is meeting with eminent success in and about Philadelphia, Reading, etc. Cities and towns are rapidly organizing. Harrisburg, Columbia, Lancaster and York have organized into a circuit and elected Prof. Robinson's course on English Literature, to begin January 11, 1893. Chambersburg is agitating the subject but has not, from latest information, organized yet. The time to act is now. There will be a meeting held in Brua Chapel at 8 o'clock p. m., Jan. 6 or 7, (see posters) for the purpose of organizing a Local Society here. An officer from the National Society will be here to explain the movement. All who are interested in higher education, of both sexes, are invited to come. In the meantime the writer will gladly do what he can in the way of answering questions anyone should choose to ask on the subject. Address inquiry to the subscriber.

Very respectfully,
Gettysburg, Pa. C. F SANDERS.

Slate and Brick.

NEW INDUSTRIES OF THE FULLER SLATE COMPANY.

The letter of the Carlisle correspondent of the Patriot, in that paper on Friday, had a paragraph of more than ordinary interest, which we copy, viz:

"The works of the Fuller Slate Company, near Pine Grove, will be very extensive, and there will be no less than ten brick kilns, or rather brick furnaces, for each one is an immense brick building calculated to hold 125 000 bricks and so arranged as to burn from the roof downward. They are so constructed that the heat is carried up by the sides, over the top and down through the centre. Besides the slate, they have upon the property various kinds of clay and the best of soapstone, and it is said ten different kinds of brick can be made there if desired. Several of the new kilns are about completed."

We hope the new industry will prove all that is expected of it, and more, too. The wealth of the South Mountain may be much greater than has ever been dreamed of. We admire Col. Fuller's energy in the development.

New Oxford Jottings.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.—Reader, before we again greet you, another revolution of the wheel of time will be made, and 1891 will have "shuffled off this mortal coil," and its place supplanted by 1892. There are few epochs in the life of a man that afford more ample food for reflection than the advent of a new year. It is then we sit down and reflect calmly on the past, and speculate on the future; it is then that we are most forcibly reminded "how quick the minutes fly." Ah! it was but as yesterday that the year commenced, and already has it flown and now is numbered among the things that were.

It would be a sickening task to recount the numerous murders, wrecks, floods, fires and disasters that have sacrificed human life; yet we have, as a nation, much to be thankful for. While famine, disease and death are stalking through some countries, it appears as if Providence had singled out the United States to "scatter plenty o'er a smiling land," and while the tyrants of Europe are pushing hard upon other nations, our brave citizens are "extending the area of freedom" and assistance, and doing many acts of kindness to all the needy.

Of the great and growing prospects of the Keystone State, we will not mention as they are known to all. The vast mineral and agricultural resources, and the intelligence and urbanity of her citizens place her above the foremost of the Union. The coming year, we hope, will more fully develope her wealth that is yet buried in the bowels of the earth. The prospects of Adams county we have little to say, yet she is developing herself gradly.

The grippe is bad at Hanover, Baltimore, Hagerstown, Gettysburg Philadelphia and many smaller towns in York and Adams county. Every town is more or less affected with that disease at present.

The old Buena Vista Hotel building, over 100 years old, was torn down last week. We have known that hotel for more than half a century.

Several of the young men look forward to the New Year with fear and dread and have already declared that they are not in the market, that they may be allowed to go to and from their work unmolested. The cause of this is that they read a new little book entitled, "Shall Girls Propose?"

Attest—J. B. CARNS, Clerk Q. S.
Nov. 10, 1891. td

MR. EDITOR:—It is with great reluctance that I resort to the columns of a public newspaper to speak of my private affairs.

Some one has said that silence under injustice is an attainment worth trying for and that often the surest way of killing off minor evils is to say nothing about them, for denunciation implies the unpardonable nature of the thing denounced and calls people's attention to it who otherwise would never have known anything about it. But in my case this will not apply for the reason that silence would be suicide as we shall see.

As a sensational journal has seen fit to impose on me and deceive the public by designating me as a married man, under peculiar and romantic circumstances, through the machinations of certain unscrupulous individuals who proposed to ruin my reputation and who might incite sympathy for themselves and to divert public attention from their own obliquity, I feel justified in saying something as the only successful way of controverting a monstrous falsehood. By this step I may incur censure or reverting to circumstances long since past, but when we consider that in a matter of this kind time conspires to make true what is false and tends to mature what is wrong into a right, I am impelled to do now what I was dissuaded from doing long before this by those whom I have since found out were not my friends.

I hereby emphatically declare and affirm that I have never been married to any one, that I can establish this by the most incontestable proof, that I have not been influenced by any person not to marry a particular individual and that on account of certain circumstances not known to the public I am not under any legal, moral or religious obligation to marry any particular individual. I have always entertained the most exalted ideas of matrimony and regard it as the most important step one can possibly take, for so much happiness or woe depends upon the united individuals. As most of us know, marriage is simply a civil contract and as such subject to the jurisdiction of the State and the law of the land. But I regard it also a Divine institution and as such not subject to the animadversion of the law of the state.

Christian marriage is of Divine appointment and therefore it is indissoluble, excepting for the reasons recognized by the Divine law. If I were married that would be the end of it and whether other persons knew it or not I would deem it wrong to marry again under any circumstances so long as the other party was living. It is of the greatest importance to me and of some concern to society to have my real situation truly known.

When we consider that a beggar may start a lie that an army cannot stop, I do not hope to convince all those who will read this article, for the reason that there are so many narrow-minded and bigoted people who have such a morbid desire to think and even speak evil of their fellow mortals that they cannot distinguish truth from falsehood. But with people of discrimination, I trust what I here write will merit some kindly consideration.

It grieves me to know that there are persons who ascribe to me acts of duplicity toward one in my confidence. This is doing me a flagrant wrong and a gross injustice, for let me assure you that I have not been the perpetrator but the victim of duplicity. As we go down the shadowy turn that will unfold to you that what I have here stated is true and that I have been greatly wronged.

EDWARD A. WEAVER.

A Happy New Year to All!

A New Year's Wish.

I wish you a happy New Year! May roses
  strew your way,
And paths be glad and peaceful on which you start to day
May golden shafts of sunshine bring just a little rain,
And gracious gifts of pleasure hold just a shade of pain
For skies are fairer which the clouds may sometimes overcast,
And pleasures are the best which come when grief and pain are past.
And if among your roses the ivy is entwined
Your heart will beat the nearer to the heart of all mankind

I wish you a happy New Year! Ah! who could wish you less,
May all the tender charities that heal and soothe and bless
Be scattered at your feet like flowers and may you e'er impart
To all the weary souls of men the joy with in your heart
For hearts that hold no love know not the joy it is to live,
Our lives are measured by the joys which we to others give
May charity and kindliness your life and mine imbue
My joys shall be the brighter for the joys I wish to you

Figures Wanted in Farming.

EDS COUNTRY GENTLEMAN—If any considerable number of farmers could show a precise record of the finances of their business it would shut up that unworthy cry of "farming don't pay" It is to the discredit of our profession that so few of our number can give the exact figures of the profits of the farm. The great majority of them know that they get along somehow They have commodious dwellings with pleasant grounds around them, with ornamental trees and shrubbery, gardens, orchards, stables, carriages and horses besides these which do the farm work Their houses are furnished handsomely with carpets, sofas, pianos, books, pictures and magazines They educate their children They contribute their share to the benefit of social and religious life And yet, for the want of the study of the precise figures of their incomes, they give way to that popular cry that the farm does not pay a good percentage of its cost The use of such dwellings and surroundings has of itself the value of the cost of the farm This might be proved if we should consider what the cost would be to the family if they were to live in a village and pay rent for such a dwelling and its surroundings A farmer was recently induced to sum up at the end of the year the net income of his business He was surprised himself to find that it was largely above the legal interest on the cost of his farm stock and implements

I have recently had access to an old book which has a record for fifty years of a farm of two hundred acres and a summary of the profit is given at the end of each ten years In every one of these decades the net profit of the farm was more than the legal interest on the value of the farm stock and implements In some of the decades the income was ten per cent of these values and this net income was besides the valuable use of such a home as is mentioned above. I doubt not that a great many farmers in this State could show equal or better results

I can give many examples of successful farming where young men have started in the business without any capital and have now good farms paid for and are themselves and their families valuable members of society

At the present low price of farms in this part of the State it is quite safe for a young man to buy a good farm and to go in debt for it What the young farmer wants first, is faith in his business and his wife also should have faith in the business If they do not like farming they won't be likely to succeed in it He should have a farm that is improvable, for the improvement of the farm is a very valuable part of the income I can show a farm that now produces five times more grass than it did fifty years ago and the wheat crop is equal to any in the years I would advise a young farmer not to buy a small farm There is much more profit per acre on a farm of two hundred acres, as the relative cost of stock and tools is less

There is no real danger of the decadence of farming which has been talked of There is a considerable tendency of cultivated natives in cities and large towns to make their home in the country on a farm where they find themselves among those of good standing in social and civil life

Experiments with Tomatoes

Bulletin number 32 of Cornell Agricultural Station, gives the results of the experiments at that station during the past three years on the cultivation of tomatoes and the influence of the various modes of treatment given to them From this bulletin, which occupies fifty pages, we condense a few interesting statements

The experiments with fertilizers show that the common notion that heavy fertilizing tends to diminish the quantity of fruit is erroneous Uniformly larger yields came from heavy fertilizing Thoroughly disintegrated barn manure was largely used But there is some difference in varieties, and possibly some difference in soils Tests were made to determine the comparative effect of early and late setting Plants set early in May, and exposed to cold weather, gave earlier results than those set in June, and yielded sometimes nearly five times as much They were not found to be injured by the cold raw weather of late spring as is commonly supposed They had been twice transplanted previously, and were strong and vigorous plants Two transplantings gave larger yields than either one or three Tests to determine the relative value of plants from seeds and cuttings gave variable and unsatisfactory results Pruning, by cutting back all the leading shoots from six to nine inches, at three different periods, cutting just above a flower cluster, produced little or variable effect Hilling, by drawing the soil six inches high around each plant, produced no improvement. Normal, well-grown plants gave much better results than slender, "leggy," even when the latter were set deep, and they should therefore be always grown stocky and strong Moist and shady growth induces rot, and any system of training which allows free access of sun and air, and holds the plants above the ground, appears to decrease rot This disease is kept in check by the timely use of Bordeaux mixture Single stem training gave twice as much yield per square foot as ordinary culture, with somewhat earlier results, and it greatly decreased injury from rot. Although requiring too much labor for field culture, it is fitted for early market or for home use.

Many pages are devoted in this bulletin to crosses and varieties Ignotum is pronounced the best new variety for all purposes, grown at the station this year, but there are many inferior stocks of this variety on the market. Among the most promising new ones are Cumberland Red, Long Keeper, Mitchell, Potomac, Red Mikado and Stone. The tendency is now toward round and regular types, and angular tomatoes are among the past.—Country Gentleman.

"Sho's y' live—d' co'plexion kims aftah d' blood—what's dis he—a—beau'ful co'plexion guar'nteed if d' blood am pure! Befo' d' Lo'd dat am salvation fo' Aunt Sophy"

All we claim for it is an unequaled remedy to purify the blood and invigorate the liver All the year round you can depend on Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in all cases of blood taints or humors, no matter what their name or nature

It's the cheapest blood purifier sold through druggists No matter how many doses of other medicines are offered for a dollar

Why? Because it's sold on a peculiar plan, and you only pay for the good you get

Can you ask more?

"Golden Medical Discovery" is a concentrated vegetable extract, put up in large bottles, contains no alcohol to inebriate, no syrup or sugar to derange digestion, is pleasant to the taste, and equally good for adults or children

The "Discovery" cures all Skin affections, and kindred ailments.

Manure from Different Animals

In experiments made at the Cornell University Experiment Station to determine the amount of excrement, and as nearly as possible the relative money value of the same obtained from the different farm animals in a given length of time, it was found that cows, well fed and yielding milk heavily, if kept in a stable with a floor water-tight, may be counted upon to yield nearly ten cents' worth of valuable fertilizing materials per day

Horses at work on the farm returned in manure rather more than four cents each per day during the time when they were in the stable, which by another trial was found to represent three-fifths of the excrement voided in an entire day

With sheep kept on a light galvanized iron pan covering the floor of the pen, the value of the fertilizing materials obtained was about one and a half cents per sheep per day

With swine kept in the same general way as the sheep, and fed on two different rations, the value of the manure amounted to but little more than half a cent per day for well fed, thrifty shoats of medium size Calculated on the basis of 1 000 pounds animal, live weight, the value of the manure per year for each class of animals is given as follows For horses $19 12, cows $20 82, sheep $38 55, swine, $17 11

These values are set for the purpose of making comparisons only, and the prices are those in most common use for determining the comparative value of commercial fertilizers Nothing is more varying than the value of a ton of manure, and Director Roberts is careful to say each farmer must determine what it is worth for his own use

Make-Believe Terrapin

Of course it is a sham, for there is nothing like real terrapin Still, if you cannot get any of these nice "critters," you can manage with a calf's head Boil a calf's head in just enough water to cover it, and add a couple of onions, salt and pepper When boiled tender take half the meat, half the tongue and a tablespoonful of the brains Cut it up but not too fine Put into a frying pan a quarter of a pound of good butter Mix with it a tablespoonful of flour, and bring it to a light brown Take off the fire, and add a pinch of cayenne pepper and a very little sweet marjoram If you put herbs into boiling butter it makes a bitter taste Add to the butter, very slowly a cupful of the water in which the calf's head was boiled, and half a teaspoonful of salt Then put in your chopped meat Place on the fire again—not to cook, but to get hot only—and last, put on one tablespoonful of vinegar Serve very hot, and although it is not terrapin it is good all the same

FRUIT ON EVERY FARM—No farm should be without fruit A farmer who has a taste for fruit growing and land suitable for it, should have his orchards of such fruits as his local market calls for and of such varieties as succeed best in his locality Where there is wise planting and thorough work the orchard may be the most profitable part of the farm On the other hand it may be a failure through neglect or mismanagement. A small quarter of an acre of quinces in a Massachusetts town last year gave a yield which in gross amounted to $250 or at the rate of $1 000 per acre The ordinary planter could hardly expect to reach such results But every farmer should endeavor to have a home supply of all those fruits that can be easily raised Then lay out to raise them in such perfection as to easily take any market and the surplus will find a ready, profitable sale

THE best mulch we have ever had for strawberries was buckwheat straw, says the Orange County Farmer It is practically free from weed seed of any kind—one of the worst faults of other mulches Moreover, it decomposes so quickly that it can be worked into the soil the following season with but little trouble Lastly, it is of very little value for any other purpose Let those of our farmers who have a supply of this article try it on their beds of berries

FRUITS!

To Double Crops & Make trees Bear Every Year.

CHANGING THE QUALITY OF FRUIT ON LARGE TREES

THE undersigned has had more than 25 years experience in the Nursery business growing fruits and training fruit trees, &c.

Had several large seedling Black Cherry trees standing on valuable soil The trees were thriving and 25 and 30 feet high Some trees were 60 inches circumference near the surface The cherries that the trees had produced were of inferior quality Then in August, 1880 I budded all the leading side branches and a number of buds were put on the top branches on trees 30 feet high

In this season operations were made on all the side branches and on all the top branches of the trees and the quality of fruit is now changed on large cherry trees to produce valuable crops in future time

TRAINING SOME VARIETIES OF APPLE TREES in orchards that the apple crop can be grown more regular in various seasons to grow larger crops in seasons when there is a demand for apples at favorable figures

In the season of 1885 the apple crop was very large in America and in the winter season of 1886, until in March 1886 apples were dull sale in Baltimore and in the cities of the United States and in some villages in Adams county Pa apples sold at 25 cents a bushel in March 1889, then a considerable quantity had rotted that had grown in various orchards and as here was no demand for apples that were grown in 1888 in the cities of the United States at favorable figures are proofs that the apple crop was also large in Europe and on islands in 1888

Apple trees are known to thrive and produce crops on qualities of soil that grow wheat and corn in America in Europe and on islands

In the season of 1889 the apple crop was not large and in February 1890, apples sold at $1 a bushel in various markets in Adams county

TRAINING APPLE TREES to grow valuable crops in all seasons under favorable treatment York Imperial apples have been seen to grow as large as a pound apple and the York Stripe apples have been grown as many trees as the Smokehouse apples in various soils

In various orchards the York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe tree known to bear full crops every other year And it has occurred in many orchards that many York Imperial and Baldwin trees have full crops in season when winter apples are dull sale in cities in the winter months

WITH TRAINING INSTRUMENTS York Imperial Baldwin and Early Joe trees that have apples this season can be changed through operations of training so that the trees will have apples next year It is necessary for the operation of training, to be done in the month of September and October

TRAINING YOUNG APPLE ORCHARDS that the trees will bear regular crops when commencing to bear I have witnessed young apple orchards to bear regular crops every season on trees that have been properly trained and the York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe trees that were properly trained in a young orchard, when the trees had commenced to bear they had apples every season

Operations of training can be done to young apple orchards through the winter months and in any month in the year when possible to spare the time

THE VALUE OF APPLE GROWING is not yet correctly known Have witnessed the York Stripes to grow as large as a Smoke house apple and the York Imperial as large as a Pound Apple under favorable treatment. A number of the latest and best keeping varieties of winter apples can be much improved by proper treatment, and apples be grown much larger in size The Baldwin, Smith's Cider, Dominie R I Greening Winesap Grimes Golden and Roxbury Russett can be much improved in size and quality through good treatment. Have witnessed training instruments when properly used to be the best treatment that can be rendered to trees to effect bearing of regular crops and to grow apples and fruits large in size

IMPORTANT TREATMENT FOR GROWING PEACHES—After peach trees are planted to grow peaches treatment of training add very valuable results I have witnessed a peach orchard that was trained with instruments that produced 2 and 3 bushels of peaches per tree in season During 2 and 3 years time the peaches ripened well and were of good size and were delivered to canners in York Springs and canners at other places Scarcely a season had occurred that there was not a crop of peaches

IMPORTANT INTERESTS CAN BE OBTAINED through planting peach trees along fences, to grow peaches I have witnessed peach trees that were planted along fences the trees had the attention of training and they produced crops of peaches 2 and 3 bushels a tree During 2 and 30 years time the peaches were nice size and of perfect quality and were sold to canners at various places what were not needed for home use The trees had all been budded when planted and had been taken out of the nursery as large in size as they could be obtained They were planted along fences where there were no other trees and the fences were kept clean of thorns and rubbish and peach growing resulted successfully a long fence One row of peach trees along a fence in a few years time the trees flour shed and received nourishment from the fertilizer in corn and wheat &c

IT IS A VERY TRUE FACT that on many farms and residences planting peach trees into orchards to grow peaches have proven failures and peach orchards on many farms and locations have proven to be short lived

Peaches can be successfully grown along fences that are kept clean of thorns and rubbish and then rendering to the trees simple treatment to prevent the yellows

PROTECTION can be rendered to peach trees that are planted along fences with wire and posts at a moderate expense to secure the trees from becoming injured by stock or cattle and with simple treatments peaches can be successfully grown along fences of perfect quality, along soil where wheat and corn is grown

WHEAT AND CORN require some simple attention to grow perfect crops and peach trees will do their duty when standing near corn and wheat, and with simple treatments produce favorable crops of luscious fruits in their season

SEASON to train peach trees is through the winter months and in the spring until May Securing peach trees from the yellows has to be attended to in November before the earth freezes up solid

Baldwin and York Imperial apple trees have to be treated with some very special care in September and October, that have apples this season if the trees are desired to have apples next season

I calculate to render some advice to orchardists in various parts of Adams county Pa at periods when possible to spare the time to train trees and will then make known the treatments to secure peach trees healthy and productive during many years time
